Ms. Yamada : All right. Some students in our class want to have a barbecue in ABC Park, and others want to go to XYZ Museum. We have to choose one between these two. Ryo, do you have something to say?

Ryo : Yes. Having a barbecue may be a good idea, but many of us want to do something we have never tried. Having a barbecue is not new to us.

Ms. Yamada : I see. What do you think, Jun?

Jun : I don't think so. I have never had a barbecue. It'll be fun. We'll cook together, and later we can play games or walk around in the woods. Museums are interesting, but many of us visited them. A barbecue is new to many of us.

Ms. Yamada : OK. How about you, Aya?

Aya : The museum that was built in our city last year is very special. There are so many pictures in it. I think everyone will enjoy them.

Jun : That's true, Aya. But if we go to the museum, we have to be quiet there, so we can't communicate with each other. While we're cooking, we will work together, help each other, and talk about the food and other things. We'll understand each other better if we work together. We don't know each other very well, so making friends is the most important thing for the trip. Don't you think so, Aya?

Aya : OK, Jun. But what's going to happen if it rains? We can't cook in the rain. I don't think it's good.

Ms. Yamada : That's an important point. What do you think about that, Jun?

Jun : Don't worry. The park has many covered areas. I believe having a barbecue is good.

Ms. Yamada : OK. We'll have a barbecue. I'll talk with the other teachers. Now, let's talk about some other things.
